[Successful treatment of a recurrent spontaneous arteriovenous fistula of the internal jugular vein by detachable balloon]. This paper reports a successful treatment of a recurrent spontaneous arteriovenous fistula of the internal jugular vein by detachable balloon. A 69-year-old man presented with a pulsating neck mass approximately 4 cm in diameter. Left carotid angiography showed a 3.3 x 2.8 cm pseudoaneurysm at the right internal jugular vein in the region of the bifurcation of the common carotid artery and internal jugular vein. The patient was considered to have a spontaneous arteriovenous fistula. We successfully embolized the arteriovenous fistula with two detachable balloons. No complications such as fracture of the balloon or distal embolization occurred during the procedure. Intraoperative transesophageal echocardiography showed no significant change in the cardiac function. Follow-up angiography performed 6 months later revealed the disappearance of the pseudoaneurysm.[Identification of differentially expressed genes in the epididymis and prostate of castrated and testosterone-treated rat]. To explore the change of gene expression profiles in the epididymis and prostate of castrated and testosterone-treated rat by subtractive cDNA library. High-quality cDNA was obtained from the prostate and epididymis of 20-week-old Sprague-Dawley rats. The mRNA of prostatic tissue was subtracted from that of epididymis, using gene subtraction method. The differentially expressed genes were identified by hybridization and sequencing analysis. Subtractive hybridization cDNA library was constructed and a total of 131 clones were identified; 55 clones were from the epididymis and 76 clones were from the prostate. There were 65 and 52 EST sequences from the epididymis and the prostate, respectively; 21 EST sequences from the epididymis and the prostate were common. The majority of ESTs in the epididymis and prostate libraries were unknown, which might be derived from non-coding RNAs or transcription factors. The differential expressed genes of epididymis and prostate in castrated and testosterone-treated rat were identified. The identification of these genes will facilitate further research on molecular mechanisms of epididymal and prostate cancer.After clocking over 59,000km in the air, Emirates Flight 6E-816 will finally complete
