[Alzheimer's disease: overview of etiology and clinical aspects]. Alzheimer's disease is a neurodegenerative condition of which we know a great deal about the clinical and pathological aspects. The most important aspects concerning its etiology are the following: neurotoxicity by A $\beta$ , the presence of the amyloid precursor protein C-terminal fragment of 40 amino acids, insolubility of the plaques, hyperphosphorylation of the tau protein, and the genetic transmission. More precisely, the family study of Alzheimer's disease shows that there is a risk of developing Alzheimer's disease in relatives of the affected person. Various risk factors are associated with genetic transmission. Given the great progress in medicine and the means of diagnosis, we now know that it is possible to anticipate the beginning of the disease. With the advances in genetics, it is possible to identify the most likely cause of Alzheimer's disease, but the phenomenon remains difficult to explain.

Q: Java - Time and Date I have an object which has a time and date. This object also has a list of object called Thing. Each thing has a timestamp (in milliseconds) and a key (from the Thing object). Now I need to find all the times which correspond to keys with certain values. So I need to convert my given time object to a time stamp and then find all the key objects that correspond. I have my time object as follows:

DateTimeFormatter formatter = DateTimeFormat.forPattern("yyyyMMdd HH:mm"); SimpleDateFormat dateFormat = new SimpleDateFormat("yyyyMMdd HH:mm"); Then my time object is String curr_date_time = dateFormat.format(myTime); And then I have my time object in the form of DateTimeFormatter formatter = DateTimeFormat.forPattern("yyyyMMdd HH:mm"); SimpleDateFormat dateFormat = new SimpleDateFormat("yyyyMMdd HH:mm"); My time object is something like this: DateTimeFormatter formatter = DateTimeFormat.forPattern("yyyyMMdd HH:mm"); SimpleDateFormat dateFormat = new SimpleDateFormat("yyyyMMdd HH:mm"); public void startLoadingDevice() { ParseDateTime parseDateTime = new ParseDateTime
